HONN—West German authorities announced yesterday the arrest of an alleged East German spy said to have access to the country's most secret scientific work. The report was not expected to influence the first meeting later this month of heads of government of the two states.

The key suspect arrested last week was a secretary named Irene Schultz, who was employed in the West German Ministry of Science Since 1965, the 51-year-old widow had been the person al receptionist for Bonn's ministers of science. Among other things, the ministry is responsible for all atomic research in West Germany Another woman was also ar rested in the case.
